

IGUDESMAN & JOO

HAPPY CONCERT

Music makes happy

IGUDESMAN & JOO are serving happiness on a silver orchestral platter: Each serving comes with a boost of happiness that will leave you immunised against all the problems of the world – well at least for a good seventy minutes or so. Here is a selection of happy delights that await you. Electrifying variations on themes from Beethoven's Ninth Symphony take us with his motto of all humans being brothers and sisters on the road. Our journey starts in the concert hall and then jets off making nine stops around the world and back to our very own seat. Laughing makes happy. Laughing burns calories, it boosts the immune system and secretes endorphins. Laughter even makes us smarter, so be smart, and let us sing along with this song which underscores that getting the giggles is a sure-fire cure for what ails us, and watch the orchestra dissolving into a profusion of chuckles, guffaws and tee-hee-hees. And to top off your happy meal of musical fun, IGUDESMAN & JOO perform arguably the happiest song of the century so far, „Happy” by Pharrell Williams. Of course with mashups of Mozart and Strauss which makes us even happier.
