

IGUDESMAN & JOO

RACHMANINOFF

RHAPSODY

The inseparable trio

For millions of fans, IGUDESMAN&JOO is synonymous with Rachmaninoff, thanks to their viral hit "Rachmaninoff Had Big Hands". Now the duo symphonically and rhapsodically celebrate their hero while achieving the impossible by making his epic Piano Concerto No.2 even more epic through reuniting all the songs this concerto spawned sung by legends such as Frank Sinatra and Céline Dion. "Rachmaninoff by Himself" honors Eric Carmen's own tribute to Rachmaninoff, where loneliness is so infectious that the whole orchestra breaks down in tears.

In "Flight of the Bumble Hornet", IGUDESMAN&JOO respectfully arrange Rachmaninoff's arrangement of Rimsky-Korsakov's classic and turn the orchestra into green hornets and buzzing bees! The autobiographical humorous song "They Call Me Sergei" pictures the composer's hardships and "Everyone is here" anticipates the inseparable trio IGUDESMAN&JOO and Sergei Rachmaninoff.
